

XTC-541

USB Type-C® male to HDMI® female adapter

Highlights

- Reversible type-C® design simplifies the connection, as the cable can be plugged in either direction.
- Uses an available USB-C port on your computer to connect an HDTV, monitor, or projector with an HDMI® input.
- Ideal solution to connect to a projector or monitor while traveling.

USB-C® male

HDMI®

4K Ultra HD

3.93 in
10cm

Specifications

|                    |                                                                              |
|--------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Type               | Video converter adapter                                                      |
| Connector type     | Type-C male to HDMI female                                                   |
| Resolution         | 3840 x 2160 p at 30 Hz                                                       |
| Applications       | New Macbook, Chromebook, Asus Zen AIO and other devices equipped with USB-C® |
| Transmission rate  | 10 Gbps                                                                      |
| Wire gauge         | 32 AWG                                                                       |
| Outer diameter     | 0.17in                                                                       |
| Contact material   | Nickel plated shell, Pin gold plated                                         |
| Conductor material | Tinned copper                                                                |
| Jacket             | PVC                                                                          |
| Length             | 3.93 in                                                                      |
| Weight             | 0.74 oz                                                                      |
| Warranty           | One year                                                                     |